Driven to make a difference in the way businesses value their human capital, Mary understands the importance of innovative, results-oriented services in today's challenging business environment.

Mary is a motivating facilitator and coach with years of experience in human resource performance development across a wide range of industries. Drawing on her background in a variety of management roles, she is an excellent communicator at all leadership levels with a wealth of knowledge and best practices to share.

Mary facilitates programs which enable individuals and organisations to deepen their learning, strengthen relationships, and appreciate diverse perspectives. Her ability to engage and empower employees to adopt new behaviours and implement change is apparent in all her projects, while her energy and techniques inspire new ideas and act as a catalyst for business excellence.

Her consulting experience covers the entire spectrum of design and support of training systems, curriculum design, course development and delivery, training assessment and evaluation, and instructional technology.

Mary's key focus areas include performance development, leadership development, employee engagement, coaching, and emotional intelligence.
